

2023 Entrance Examination
Graduate School of Engineering, the University of Tokyo
Specialized Subjects in Urban Engineering

Separate Room/Online Exam Application Form

The written examination (specialized subjects) for the Department of Urban Engineering will be held at the examination site (Hongo Campus, the University of Tokyo). Applicants who have underlying medical conditions and are at high risk of severe infection due to COVID-19 may be allowed to take the examination in a separate room with a small number of examinees or online (limited to those whose physician determines they should also avoid a room with small number of examinees). Applicants who wish to do so must submit this form. Applicants will be notified whether or not they can take the examination in a separate room or online along with the examination voucher. Note that after the notification is sent, you cannot request to change the examination format.

Those who are permitted to take the examination online must participate in the online exam environment check (mock exam) to be held on the afternoon of Sunday, August 28. Applicants who do not participate may be disqualified from the exam. Applicants who are unable to take the examination on the afternoon of Sunday, August 28 should notify the department. In order to ensure fairness and prevent cheating, the online written examination will be recorded and audio-recorded.

Applicants are required to prepare and secure in advance the environment for the online examination as described in "Entrance Examination Schedule, Required Environment, and Personal Items" on page 8 of the Admission Guide for the Department of Urban Engineering.
